AN OPEN LOVE-LETTER And the Answer-The Tender of a Testi

21st as the Time. In giving place to the following correspondence, the APPEAL takes pleasure in indorsing what has been so well and generously said by the signers of the "open love-letter," and hopes that the concert will be more than projectors look for. The Open Love-Letter. MEMPHIS, March 29, 1881.

MISS JENNIE JONES—It is not often that the ser

has so richly endowed you have been often vonnicered on occasions of benefits to persons and objects other than your own, both in private and in public. You have never denied to our people your rare gift of sone when asked, or turned a deaf ear to the call of benevolence when you could aid; and now, as a slight return for the many pleasant evenings your music has made for us, and as a testimonial of the help that you have rendered in worthy undertakings, we desire to make public acknowledgement. We have made use of no meaningless planses in this love-letter, but all we have said comes right from the heart. Please fix upon some evening of the coming month, and name some appropriate place, where we can listen to the programme of a concert arranged by yourself, and to which we can have the pleasure of taking our wives and our sweethearts, who are as much in love with your beautiful gift of voice and your noble character as we are ourselves. In all sincerity, we are your friends and admirers.

—A subscriber at Somerville, writing to a friend in this city recently, pays the APPEAL a handsome compliment—a compliment that we prize all the more that the writer is a Republican and differs with us in many things that we regard essentials. He says: "The Memphis APPEAL came to me until New Years, then stopped or missed one week; since then it comes regularly every week. I am taking several papers now, but there is none I appreciate as highly as the APPEAL. That seems unreasonable, as I am a Republican and the APPEAL a Democratic paper. I must say, in all candor, that the APPEAL is one of the most liberal, able and conservative papers I know of. CONDUCTOR KILLED.

im Curry Shot Through the Head a New Mexican Brothel by the Barkeeper, byen Coroner's Jury.

Last Wednesday week at Las Vegas, New Mexico, James H. Curry, freight conductor on the Banana line, was shot and instantly killed in a brothel saloon by the barkeeper under the following circumstances: Curry had been paid his monthly wages and got on a big spree. In the forenoon he was standing on the streets and appeared to be in a furious passion about something. He drew a revolver and made play to shoot into a house standing on his right, but he changed his mind and put up his pistol. In a short time he moved on and entered Berthn's bagnio. At the time Jim Thora, a shoemaker, was standing at the bar, and behind the bar was Elright, Bertha's "solid man" and "roper-in." A row at once ensued between Curry and Elright, the former drawing his revolver and the latter dropping behind the counter, where he seized a British bull-dog pistol, and, rising, fired at Curry, the ball entering his head and producing death in a few seconds. Jim Thora ran out when the row commenced and when the crowd rushed in Curry was on the floor dead, and Elright was standing over him trying in an excited manner to explain the affair. There was some threats made about hanging Elright but he was conveyed to jail and the coroner's jury returned a verdict that the shooting was done in self-defense. The railroad men took possession of Cürry's body for interment and held an indignation meeting at, which resolutions were adopted denouncing Elright as a murderer and that an eye should be given for an eye.

grandeur. It was art of the highest classical order, as it was also one of the actor's most popular interpretations. The role fits Mr. McCullough to perfection. There is in it so much manliness and tenderness, elements that the actor has within himself, that your lose all recollection of the artist, and imagine yourself a spectator of the great historical tragedy, so rarely does the hero and the actor seem cast in the same great mould. The atdience became fascinated, but the spell was broken at the fall of the curtain at the close of each act; then a storm of applause followed, that was kept up until Mr. McCullough appeared and bowed his grateful facknowledgments. At the close of the act preceding the last he was called to the footlights, and wrapping his toga around him spoke as follows:

Ladies and gentlement, as did not appear and thankyou for the many favors you have shown me in the past. In four weeks I will appear in London, in the same character that I appear in to-night. Should I succeed I will be pleased, and I know that you will be pleased for your many kindnesses. Ladies and gentlemen, I again thank you.

Mr. McCullough retired and the applause broke out afresh and continued for many seconds. The support rendered by the company was excellent, each actor and actress being date to the fact of the war, on the Memphis and Little Rock and during which time he made a host of friends. In 1875, after having served some time at the 'brake,' in 1870 he became passenger conductor on the Memphis and Little Rock railroad. ing Inspected by the City Engine of Baltimore, Maryland, and by the New Orleans Committee.

City Engineer C. Fl. Latrobe, of Baltimore, daryland, was in the city yesterday looking into the Waring system of sewerage. Mr. Latrobe has been commissioned to visit many cities, inspect the sewerage service and make due report to the authorities of Baltimore, who seek all the light to be found on the sub-ject before they adopt a system for their city. Major Humphreys, who has charge of the sewerage work here, accompanied by Mr. Latrobe and by City Surveyor D. M. Bros-nau of New Orleans, made, an inspection of nau, of New Orleans, made an inspection of Latrobe took copious notes as to everything connected with the work, and expressed himself as highly pleased. He carefully examined the sewage as it passed through the pipes, and also as to the retention or expulsion of sewer gas. While the examination was progressing, the flush tanks were put in operation, and the ball device for cleansing operation, and the ball device for cleansing sewers was used—that is, a hollow metal ball eighteen inches in diameter, was put in the twenty-inch main, and was pushed and rolled through by the action of the sewage flow, as well as by the incline. It stirred up whatever small deposit was in the pipe, and the water whirled it away to the outlet. To-day Mr. Brosnau and the New Orleans committee-men, who arrived here yesterday, will make an inspection, with a view to report on their return to the Crescent City. The Cuban.
